

Title IX Compliance

In compliance with the Title IX 20 U.S.C. § 1681(a), no person shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance. Furthermore, sexual harassment and violence are strictly prohibited at New Lines Institute for Strategy and Policy.

Any victims or third parties should report all incidents of sex discrimination, sexual harassment, or sexual violence to the Title IX Coordinators, at the below contact information:

In accordance with the federal law, all victims and third parties have the option of reporting incidents by email, phone, mail, or in person to the Title IX Coordinator. All victims have the right to report to police, the institute will facilitate that process if desired by the victim. Victims also have the right not to report to the police.

All incidents of sex discrimination, sexual harassment, or sexual violence will be investigated promptly, in order to remedy any hostile educational environment created by such behaviors. Investigations may include the assistance of police, which may delay the response of New Lines Institute for Strategy and Policy to accommodate a police investigation. If the case requires police investigation, New Lines Institute for Strategy and Policy will delay their response to the case a maximum of 10 days in order to give appropriate time for police to gather evidence. If New Lines Institute for Strategy and Policy must delay their response, all parties will be informed of the delay and given an approximate timeline for when the response will resume. Institutional investigations will take no more than 60 days, except in the instance of a complex case, which will be addressed within a reasonable period of time given the circumstances.
