

Plagiarism

New Lines Institute maintains a zero-tolerance policy toward plagiarism, including the use of content generated in whole or in part by generative AI tools. All written coursework must be original and authored solely by the student.

This policy is in place to:

- Uphold academic integrity and honesty
- Ensure fairness and equity among applicants
- Preserve the authenticity of the applicant's voice and expression
- Support holistic admissions decisions based on the applicant's own critical thinking and communication skills
- Promote readiness for graduate-level academic work
- Address potential intellectual property concerns

Coursework found to contain AI-generated content may not be accepted. This policy aligns with New Lines Institute's commitment to maintaining academic standards and fostering an environment of originality and academic honesty.

Contact Information

For further information about the New Lines Institute Master of Arts in Strategy and Policy, please contact admissions@newlinesinstitute.org.

Location: 1660 L St. NW, Ste. 450, Washington, DC 20036, US